

FIRST HALF 2025 MULTIFAMILY & MIXED-USE MARKET REPORT

FAIRFIELD COUNTY, CT

FIRST HALF 2025 EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Fairfield County, CT Multifamily & Mixed-Use

Fairfield County's Multifamily And Mixed-Use Market: A Tampered Recovery

While the first half of 2025 showed increases across most measurables when compared to the abysmal first half of 2024, the market took a step back from its recovery that began in Q3 & Q4 2024. When comparing the back half of 2024 to Q1 & Q2 2025 we see a dramatic decrease in activity with buildings sold down 32%, units sold down 51%, SF sold down 47%, and total sales volume down 53%. The expected interest rate declines failed to materialize to start the year spoiling the optimistic market that started picking up steam to end 2024.

Upward Momentum of the +50 Unit Market

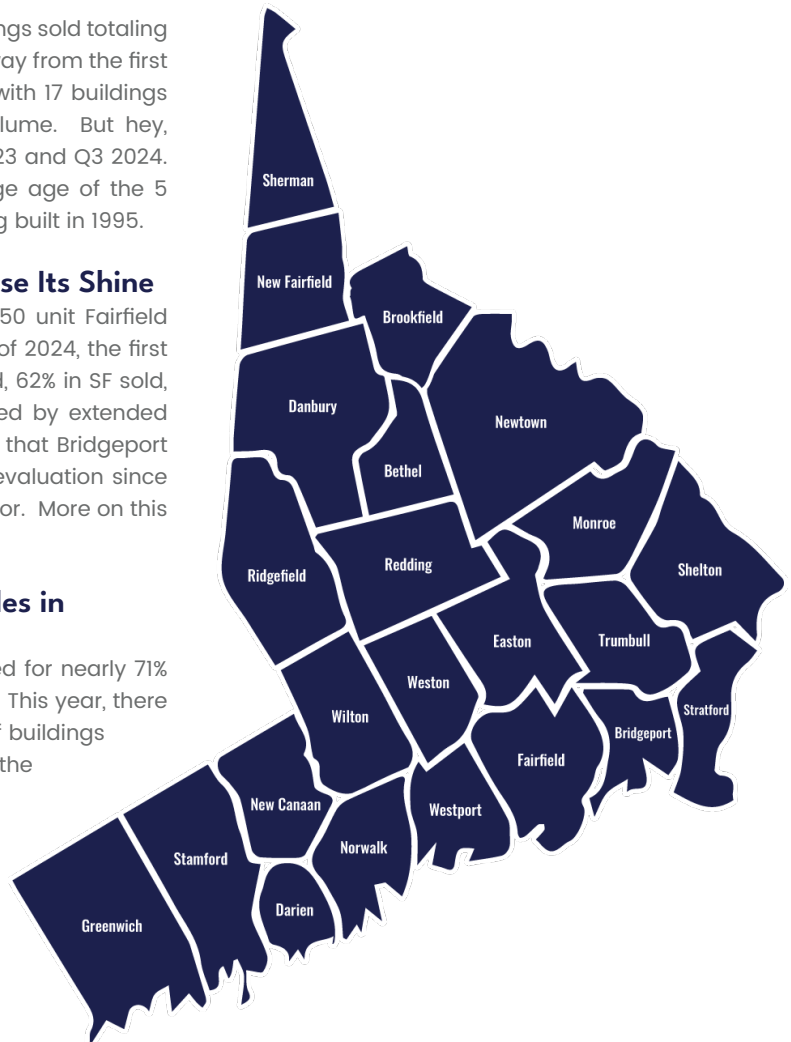

The +50 unit market continued to climb in activity with 5 buildings sold totaling 480 units, 729K SF, and $181M in sales volume. Still a far cry away from the first half of 2022 when low interest rates drove the same period with 17 buildings sold totaling 2,481 units, 2,926M SF, and $927M in sales volume. But hey, anything beats the 5 quarters without a sale between Q2 2023 and Q3 2024. Things continue to look more like old times with the average age of the 5 properties sold in the first half of 2025 in Fairfield County being built in 1995.

Fairfield County's 5-50 Unit Market Begins to Lose Its Shine

How important are Bridgeport building sales to the total 5-50 unit Fairfield County market? It turns out very. Compared to the first half of 2024, the first half of 2025 was down 47% in buildings sold, 65% in units sold, 62% in SF sold, and 47% in sales volume. While the market is still hampered by extended high interest rates, one other very important piece to note is that Bridgeport has been in its data collection period for its upcoming tax revaluation since October 2024. Is it the only driver? No, but it certainly is a factor. More on this below.

Bridgeport's Revaluation Effect on 5-50 Unit Sales in Fairfield County

Last year at this time, 5-50 unit sales in Bridgeport accounted for nearly 71% of the total 34 sales in the 1st half of 2024 for Fairfield County. This year, there are just 7 sales so far in Bridgeport, accounting for just 39% of buildings sold in Fairfield County. Looking at non-Bridgeport sales in the 1st half of 2025, buildings sold elsewhere in the county slightly increased. Bridgeport's revaluation data collection period, which has run from October 2024 to September 2025, seems to be holding a strong grip over transaction concerns due to potential real estate tax increases. We expect sales to pick up in Bridgeport towards the latter portion of 2025 and to see significantly strengthened sales by mid-2026 as the revaluation risk and clarity to property taxes comes to light.

Busy in Greenwich

National Multifamily has been busy in Greenwich CT. The closest enclave to New York City in Fairfield County has continued its strong rent growth post covid. National Multifamily has brokered 4 multifamily sales recently in Greenwich, with our latest closing in Q2 2025. More details on this transaction can be found on our sales highlights page later in the market report. With a new deal launching in Old Greenwich in Q3 2025, we continue to see strong investor demand for these high-quality locations and high paying tenant rental market.

FIRST HALF 2025: +50 UNIT BUILDINGS

Fairfield County, CT Multifamily & Mixed-Use

Activity at last for +50 Unit Buildings in Fairfield County

Momentum continues to build in the +50 unit building space with 5 buildings sold totaling 480 units in the 1st half of 2025. While this is slightly down from the 7 buildings sold totaling 1,031 units in the 2nd half of 2024, it remains a huge improvement in the marketplace that saw 5 consecutive quarters between Q2 2023 and Q3 2024 with no sales of +50 unit buildings in Fairfield County. While volume remains off from the low-interest rate market Q1 and Q2 2022, some activity is better than none.

Rise in New Construction Deals

As interest rates rose, new construction sales fell as the market searched for yield. The data shows that yield through an average age of buildings sold in the 1st half of 2022 moving from 1996 to 1951 in the 1st half of 2023. Naturally the price per unit skewed lower with the older properties with the average declining from $373K/unit to $116K/unit. With no sales in the first half of 2024, we can see the bounce back in new construction deals in the 1st half of 2025 with the average +50 unit building sold moving to a year built average of 1995 and the average price per unit jumping back to around the 2022 standard of $378K/unit.

Sustained Elevated Rates Begin to Strain 5-50 Unit Sales

With rates remaining high throughout the first half of 2025 and the prospect of multiple rate cuts becoming less likely later in the year, sales of 5–50 units were hampered by almost 50% when compared to the 1st half of 2023 and 2024. The relative stability amongst this class during the increased interest rate period starting in early 2022 seems to have finally caught up with the smaller building size.

	1st Half 2023	1st Half 2024	1st Half 2025	Prior Year Change
Buildings Sold	36	34	18	-47.06%
Units Sold	575	566	198	-65.02%
SF Sold	516,169	439,294	166,537	-62.09%
Sales Volume	$79,596,166.67	$77,229,998.99	$41,054,000.00	-46.84%

RECENT CLIENT SUCCESS

BYRAM MULTIFAMILY & PARCEL TRADE FOR $2.077M

CHALLENGE

The property had been purchased by the owner six years prior. Upon purchase the owner began to meticulously renovate the interior of the apartments, the common areas, the exterior to add curb appeal, and the mechanicals. The renovations completed resulted in Class A apartments in a neighborhood on the rise. However, due to third party management running the property, rents began to lag significantly below market with the studio apartments approximately 7% below market and the two-bedroom apartments approximately 16% below market.

ACTION

The owner of the property had reached out to Matt Cawley of National Multifamily as he had recently sold three other multifamily properties within the Byram neighborhood in Greenwich over the past 18 months. Matt was able to put together a full Broker Opinion of Value detailing out the valuation and how to maximize price by understanding the value of individual pieces, a 6-unit apartment building and a contiguous parcel that were both on the same deed. Updating the owner on weekly calls through the premarketing and marketing period the owner understood the plan through consistent communication.

RESULT

National Multifamily's marketing was so effective that a deal was agreed to within 36 hours of the building going to the market. The top bidder paying slightly above the asking price to secure the property. The results from the successful marketing and deal included:

- Offer acceptance within 36 hours of marketing launch
- The Offer Price was the Closing Price

- A financing process completed in tandem with the buyer's mortgage broker to place two pieces of debt: one for the building and the other for the lot
- The sale of 6-unit multifamily and the lot combined for a closing cap rate of 5.38%.

TESTIMONIAL

Matt had a very solid track record selling apartment buildings surrounding my property in Byram. He was able to effectively value the building and the lot, clearly communicate the strategy to sell the assets, and ultimately execute the strategy to deliver an offer slightly above ask shortly after the marketing began for the building. Once we got into contract, he continued to coordinate through due diligence and financing until the deal was closed.
